BRITTANY NEEL'S LAW PRACTICE balances commercial disputes with a growing focus on meeting the non-litigation legal needs of closely held companies.

As a law student at the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University, Brittany Neel served as an Executive Editor of the Law Journal for Social Justice, and she externed for Arizona Court of Appeals Judge Donn Kessler. She was a Pedrick Scholar and a recipient of the Dean's Recruitment Scholarship and a CALI Award for ADR & Employment Law.

Brittany also interned at the non-profit organization CEASE, where she assisted low-income families, refugees, and victims of domestic violence dealing with various domestic and family law issues.

In her free time, Brittany enjoys cooking, doing yoga, and attending live music performances.
